Changes in Forest (Conservation) Act, 1980

†*380. SHRI KRTPAL PARMAR: Will the Minister of ENVIRONMENT ANF FORESTS be pleased to state:

† Original notice of the question was received in Hindi.

(a) whether it is a fact that developmental activities in Adivasi and tribal areas have been adversely affected as a result of implementation of the Forest (Conservation) Act, 1980;

(b) if so, the details thereof and Government's reaction thereto;

(c) whether Government would consider to make the Act a bit flexible so that developmental activities in Adivasi and tribal areas remain unaffected; and

(d) if so, the details thereof?

THE MINISTER OF ENVIRONMENT AND FORESTS (SHRI T.R. BAALU): (a) to (d) Forests provide several usufructs in meeting the sustenance and livelihood needs of the tribals including food during lean period. Regulation of diversion of forest to non-forestry activity is in the long term interest of the tribal and local communities. Therefore, Forest (Conservation) Act, 1980 helps in safeguarding interests of the Adivasis and tribals rather than adversely affecting them. The Act has adequate flexibility to allow the activities that are for the welfare of the tribal community without causing irreparable damage to the forest eco-system.

The Act being regulatory and not prohibitory in nature is flexible enough to allow important developmental activities on forest lands and as such no change or amendment in the Act is contemplated.
